

Murder Suspect Believed Hiding In South Fulton

There was gunshots still in the air when South Fulton police arrived to investigate a shooting. But Robert Harris, 35, made such a quick get-away that city, county and State police are still unable to find him. Within ten minutes after the ex-convict shot his wife Nora Lee Sunday afternoon South Fulton police arrived. Yet, no trace or clues to his whereabouts have been uncovered. Chief of Police Elmer Mansfield, who said the man is dangerous, told the News Wednesday "he's got to be in South Fulton somewhere." Most of the people who know Harris think the same thing.

It was about 3:30 p. m. Sunday afternoon that Harris encountered his wife in the vicinity of a house on Short Iron Street in South Fulton. He brandished the gun before several eye witnesses to the tragedy before he pumped six shots into the mouth, neck, temple and other parts of his wife's body.

Notebook

We're going to lose a good neighbor on Commercial Avenue. Meacham's Market is closing within a short time. Jimmy, who has worked for and owned the store as man and boy for many years, is in the Kennedy General Hospital in Memphis. His good wife Katherine, who is handling the closing operations said that Jimmy's concern for his business and his employees is not conducive to his quick recovery, so it's better to remove that obstacle so Jimmy can convalesce without the added strain. We concur!

Katherine was in the News office Monday chatting about closing the store and such and we learned a lot of things. Jimmy started working for the store that is now Meacham's Market when it was owned by Paul DeMyer. He was a mighty young fellow. Later he and his father, the late C. O. Meacham, operated the store until Mr. Meacham retired before his death. Jimmy, with a staff of loyal and devoted employees, had been operating the store until his illness several months ago.

The closing of Meacham's Market is more than losing a neighbor. It is a reflection on the past and the future. Meacham's Market is perhaps another casualty in the growing mortality rate among the small, independent grocery stores. I'm glad I'm old enough, to store in my attic of memories, the modus operandi of the little grocery stores, where the operators do everything but cook the meals for their customers. They take the order over the phone, make suggestions for the meal, charge it, deliver it and go so far as to put the perishables in the refrigerator when the housewife is not at home.

Jimmy Meacham, and others like him, could well be star characters in any movie depicting a vanishing breed of retailers. He has served on the City Council, worked in the Chamber of Commerce, was active and will be again in his church, and has always been a backbone of the community. When Jimmy gets back home, and is well again, he'll be the most called upon fellow in town to serve on every committee that needs him.

Jimmy has had a long and costly siege of illness. He has had seven operations on his leg. If there's anyway in the world that he could be here to help Katherine and Joe Cochran and the rest, he would surely do so. But he can't be, so we've all got to pitch in and help.

If you know anybody in the market for grocery store fixtures, why not let Katherine know. If you have an account with the store, don't wait until you get a statement, ask the folks to figure it up for you today and get it settled. If Katherine can get these things squared away in record time, she can go down and spend more time with Jimmy, where she and her little girl want to be, anyhow.

These and many other things can help toward showing a community's gratitude for a fine citizen. But most of all, remember Jimmy in your prayers every day. Whatever our faith, I think that we'll agree that the good Lord is the Master Surgeon and Physician. If all of us let Him know what (Continued on page eight)

Bondurant, Ross Named To County Youth Council

Youth Councils, to deal with the problem of Kentucky's school dropouts and unemployed youth at the local level, have been set up in 60 Kentucky counties. Dr. Cathryn Handelman, chairman of the Kentucky Commission on Children and Youth, has announced.

In Fulton County, appointments to the council have been accepted by Judge John C. Bondurant and Joe Ross.

They will represent the county at a forthcoming statewide conference on school dropouts set for August 22-23 at the Kentucky Hotel in Louisville.

Kentucky in 1962 had the second highest school dropout rate in the nation—48.2 per cent. An intensive report of the situation will be released at the August conference by the Kentucky Department of Education.

Dr. J. C. Hancock Dies Suddenly On Wednesday

A friendly and gregarious man, whose countenance always indicated that he had just heard a funny story, died unexpectedly early Wednesday morning at the Jones Hospital. Dr. James Collins Hancock, a member of a prominent and pioneer family of West Kentucky, was stricken while in his office early Tuesday afternoon. He had not been previously ill. His death shocked and saddened the community who knew him well and loved him.

Everybody called Dr. Hancock, "J. C." It was a term of affection and an indication that hundreds of people called him friend and neighbor long before he ever acquired his medical degree from Vanderbilt University. When many people expressed deep sorrow on his sudden death they reflected that, although a busy and hard-working doctor, he made his patients know that when not on duty he spent a great deal of time outdoors, fishing, hunting, just browsing around the countryside. Not long ago this reporter underwent a treatment at Dr. Hancock's office. All the while he was administering the medication, he kept up a constant conversation about the remarkable development of the between-the-lakes area and its potential for the tourist industry. On other occasions he would tell of a trip to a sport event or a good article he had read. It may have been part of his therapy. It was also conclusive that Dr. Hancock was no "country doctor," but a well-read, well-travelled, intensely professional man who could perform his specialty with no apparent effort at all.

He appeared to be a paradox; a man in a hurry, full of energy, robust in his vitality. Yet, when he related his leisurely journeys and his contact with the outdoors, it was obvious that he knew when and how to relax. He seemed most at ease when he was relating some of his experiences with the government medical corps, in which he served from 1929 to 1939, and of his World War II service in the Pacific Theatre.

The medical profession respected his ability. His friends admired his loyalty. His family, his church and his community will long remember him.

Robey Says $6000 Collected In Past Due Accounts; Bans Campaign By Workers

In a memorandum to the Mayor and Board of Commissioners City Manager Jim Robey advised the group that city employees will be prohibited from participating in the forthcoming campaign to elect four City Commissioners. Mr. Robey said that the notice regarding electioneering by city employees will go out this week warning that charges will be brought against any employee who actively participates in the city election.

Meanwhile, as of press time Wednesday, seven candidates had filed for the four offices to be filled in the election in November. Bob McCain, who had previously filed, withdrew his petition Wednesday.

Although some of the candidates may seek election as independents, it can be generally assumed that W. F. Burnette, Bill Scott, Charles Robert Bennett and Ward Johnson will run as a "slate." Both Bennett and Johnson have served previously as officials in the Fulton City government. Bennett is now serving as Commissioner and has served as Councilman, as has Johnson.

Clarence Moline, is reliably reported to have circulated a petition for the candidacy of former Mayor and Commissioner Nelson Tripp. Tripp filed Wednesday.

Moline, serving his first term as Commissioner, has filed his petition for re-election, as has Bill Rice, who filed on July 29. Only the offices of Commissioners are

Fulton's Sewage Disposal Plant Largest Project In Eight Years

Construction of Fulton's new sewage disposal system has begun, marking the beginning of the end of a long-standing problem here and in South Fulton. The question of sewage disposal has plagued both Fulton and South Fulton for a number of years, and was brought to partial solution early this year with South Fulton's construction of a new sewage disposal plant.

Fulton's operation is based on the lagoons system, with the lagoon to be located on land north of the City Park off Highway 307. It was purchased from Robert Davis.

Mayor Gilbert DeMyer signed a contract last week with the Murray Platt Electric Company, and work was begun Thursday morning. Completion date is expected to be the last of December or early January.

The construction is the largest single public improvement of Fulton in the last eight years. Total cost is estimated to be approximately $300,000.

Through the negotiations of City officials, the project is being financed through a federal grant with the balance made possible with a loan from the Community Facilities Administration. The total grant received is the amount of $131,100, and a maximum loan of $190,000 has been made. Jim Robey said that a direct saving to the city of $32,000 will result from lower interest rates available in the CFA loan. Mr. Robey was successful in obtaining the funds at a 3 1/2 percent rate, rather than the 4 1/2 percent now being paid by the city on previous transactions.

Contractors for the construction are Kowles Construction Co. of Memphis and Murray Platt Electric Co. of Newbern.

Work Starts On New Lighting For Fulton's Streets

Work has begun on Fulton's new street lighting system. The first installation was on Wells Avenue and Maple Avenue in East Fulton.

Utilities Construction Company, Inc., Milan, Tenn., has the contract for the installation of new lighting system. Its bid was $44,747.03.

The contract calls for the completion of the contract within 60 days.

The new lights will cover the entire area of the city. The new street lights will produce approximately six times as much light as the city is now receiving.

NO CRAMMING!

City Manager James Robey has announced that examinations will be given tonight (August 8) for the position of Chief of Police in Fulton. All applications for the job must be in Mr. Robey's office by 4:30 p. m. today and the examination will be given at 7:15 p. m.

Woodmen Of World Determined To Fill Amphitheatre August 20

The Woodmen of the World have set August 20 as their night at the Kentucky Lake Amphitheatre, and according to State Woodmen Manager Buford Hurt, the fraternal lodge is determined to fill the theater.

Meanwhile the drama association announces that a "bonus" is being given audiences this week in the 30-minute folk song concert before the show goes on at 8 p. m. Jack Boyd, the show's musical director will lead the chorus.

"We feel several obligations to the theater," said Hurt, "and we plan to pay them. Of course, the most important is that 'Stars in My Crown' is a wonderful show that every one should see. Then, Max Hurt, who is president of West Kentucky Productions, is a national Woodmen officer. He has done a tremendous job, without pay, in heading the production company, and we feel we should show our appreciation to him. Finally, we think that 'Stars in My Crown' is a wonderful asset to West Kentucky, and since our organization prides itself for its community service, we think it is our duty to give the show our support." Letters have been mailed from the state manager's office to all the Woodmen units in West Kentucky, urging members to attend (Continued on page eight)

Bobby Matthews Loses In Second Bid For Sheriff

South Fulton's Bobby Matthews lost his second bid for sheriff of Obion County in one of the most spirited political races in many years that climaxed Saturday when Robert (Bob) McCowan, former Union City Commissioner, defeated five other candidates to become the Democratic party's nominee for the office of Obion county sheriff.

Only a few votes marked the margin of his defeat in this year's election from his attempt at winning the sheriff's position in his last race.

The victory means Mr. McCowan will be the Democratic nominee for the sheriff's office in the general election in August 1964. Nomination by the Democratic party in Obion county usually means election.

Unofficial but complete returns from the county's 32 voting precincts, compiled in the offices of The Messenger in near-record time, showed 1,878 votes for Mr. McCowan. His nearest opponent was Bobby Matthews of South Fulton, who polled 1,509.

T. C. McCullough of Obion received 1,405 votes while Bill Mcneese of Union City polled 1,069. Trailing the field of six were Theodore Spicer of Samburg, with 341 votes, and J. I. Case of Union City, 235 votes.

Members of the county's Democratic executive committee are expected to meet Tuesday or Wednesday to make their official canvass of the vote.

A total of 6,437 ballots were cast in the race for sheriff, about normal for a campaign of this nature. Some observers, however, had predicted that 7,000 to 9,000 ballots would be cast.

"It was a very hot day," one election official commented Saturday night. "There were many people, I believe, who just didn't have the energy to dress up and come to the polls."

Farm Bureau Picnic Planned For Wednesday

On August 14 the Fulton County Farm Bureau will hold its annual picnic in the City park in Fulton. The 4-H Club beef cattle and dairy show will be held in the ball park, in front of the grandstand.

A drawing will be held at 1 p. m. and three cases of oil will be given away; also a battery-powered aqua car for the children. These prizes were donated by Ralph Puckett, DX distributor.

The Fulton County Farm Bureau has moved its office to a new location in Hickman, next to the A. S. C. office, which is in the old National Guard Building. All members and the public are invited to go by and visit and see the new office.

Duo-Team Of Rice And McCain May Become Trio; Moline Directing "Let's Not Skip Over Tripp"

The duo-team of Rice and McCain appears to be making plans for next year's performances as a trio. The short run, three-act play, which brought about the hit show "Who's Police Chief Today," around town, appears to be understudying Mayor Gilbert DeMyer for the third man theme. DeMyer, until recently has been the target for the Rice-McCain opposition, but recent events in the fast moving scene at Fulton City Hall have brought forth a new villain, in a cast that appears to have not a "good guy" in the whole plot of city affairs.

City Manager James Robey appears to be the new anathema of the three-man team. Robey, is fast looming as one of the most versatile characters in the day-by-day, play-by-play at City Hall. First, an indispensable hero to the four City officials who hired him, he quickly made it known that he was no featured player in his designated role of City Manager. He played the part according to the script written in Kentucky Revised Statutes. His performance was not to the liking of Commissioners Bill Rice and Bob McCain, but Mayor DeMyer sensed that weathering a belligerent audience or two, Robey could be directed into becoming the star of the show.

DeMyer was applauding the hard-working Robey from the wings of the theatre of municipal affairs. But Robey, having viewed the affairs as a role toward getting "the municipal show on the road to progress," incurred a poor review from DeMyer; first when Robey suggested to revamp the City Budget. DeMyer opposed some of the spending lines read by Robey, and cut the lines right out of the budget script.

From then on, the most discerning reviewers noticed, that DeMyer had designs on Robey's role and joined the duo-team of Rice and McCain to send Robey bouncing to whatever theatre of operations Robey chose to perform in.

"It was the 'Who's Police Chief Today,' play that gave Fulton citizens a preview of performances to come. It became obvious that whatever lines Robey chose to utter in the script of Kentucky Revised Statutes, DeMyer joined Rice and McCain in the fast moving action that makes even the most avid who-dunit-fan want to find out how the play is going to end.

For the average viewer who does not concern himself or herself with the various acts contained in Kentucky Revised Statutes, we'd like to digress a moment to tell you that KRS is a compilation of legal scenes whose playwrights have been the law-makers of our Commonwealth. While many average people have considered the script a little on the dull side, it nevertheless is the hand book from which City Managers and other public officials get their cues.

In the instance of the casting of a temporary police chief, Robey was getting his lines straight from the chapter entitled "KRS 89-570." In the role of City Manager he was not trying to be upstage or steal any glittering scenes from the other performers on the municipal stage. But Rice, McCain and DeMyer, jumped out of their official seats and did a re-take of the Robey performance that made The Associated Press, the television and metropolitan communications media in the area give the revision top billing.

The action was so fast and thrills-packed that while one television station was reporting that Nemo Williams had been appointed temporary chief to replace Duck Smith, resigned, the whole cast at City Hall was rehearsing another scene that may be thrown out when auditions are held in a short time.

In chronological sequence the play went like this:

Smith took a final curtain call. Robey cast Glenn "Nemo" Williams. The directing team of Rice-McCain-DeMyer had a directorial conference and went to Williams and told him that the badge did not match his personality or his ability.

It did match the personality of patrolman Stanley Beadles, however, and for a few fleeting moments Beadles was playing the role of chief cop. DeMyer decided to call a meeting of the whole cast for Friday night to take a look at Robey's KRS script reading. The three directors took a different view of the City Manager's interpretation of same.

After about an hour of harrowing rehearsal, where everybody ad libbed, including some of the audience at the meeting of the cast, though a little battered and beaten, the Commission bowed to Robey's recommendation of Guy Perry as stand-in chief. But Perry's role is only temporary. Auditions for the job as "permanent" chief... what a way to abuse the English language... will be conducted soon.

The role of police chief of the City of Fulton seems to carry with it the title "Steady Work Takes A Holiday."

The next thrilling episode of "Who's Police Chief Today," will be presented in about two weeks. But meanwhile the plot thickens.

As this is being written County Court Clerk Dee Langford peeps through the curtain to advise that Commissioner Bill Rice filed for reelection on July 29. Bob McCain's petition is on file, Langford said, but it might be rescinded, he was told by McCain.

Meanwhile another drama is unfolding itself. Former Mayor and Commissioner Nelson Tripp is reported to be considering running for Commissioner, perhaps on a slate with "The Last Angry Man" Bill Rice.

What's more, one of the principal characters in Fulton's current moving picture, "Tragedy for the Taxpayers," is circulating the program to get Tripp back on the political stage. Clarence Moline is acting as Tripp's "angel" in the come-back performance. While Moline directs the "Let's Not Skip Over Tripp" drama, Moline's friends are acting as his agent to get him a part in the taxpayer-sponsored drama.

Now if the curtain falls at the stroke of twelve on August 7 (deadline for filing for office in the September primary) with Rice, McCain, Moline and Tripp appearing as a quartet, Fulton voters will see a repeat performance of a production that was a sell-out two years ago. Tripp was not selected for the leading role as Mayor when he ran with the quartet; having been narrowly edged out by the stellar vote-getting performance of Gilbert DeMyer.

The play may have a tear-jerking ending for Mayor DeMyer if the Rice-McCain-Moline-Tripp quartet is signed to a two year contract for performances at City Hall. But then the situation may not be too hopeless for DeMyer. Rave notices have been received by Charles Laughton, Basil Rathbone, James Mason and other fine performers for their excellences in monologues. Some composer could come along and write a hit tune from these lyrics from a roll call... McCain, no; Rice, no; Moline, no; Tripp, no... DeMyer, yes.

Surely the play at City Hall should show to "Standing Room Only" between now and election time. And the remarkable aspect of this long running drama is that you don't have to make reservations for a seat and the admission is free.

The tragic comedy is underwritten by a large group of patrons called taxpayers.

"It's for you, Argyle — your bookie is calling... YOUR BOOKIE IS CALLING?"

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission
By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week, U. S. District Judge Bland Ballard, presiding in the Federal Court at Louisville, passed sentence upon Thomas C. Shacklett, a resident of Meade County who had been convicted of treason, the specific charge being that he had given aid to Confederate soldiers. Judge Ballard imposed a fine of $10,000 and a term of ten years to be served in the Louisville jail. He also decreed that the defendant's slaves be set free.

That part of the judgment emancipating Shacklett's slaves caused considerable indignation and alarm among Unionist slaveholders of Kentucky. In the early part of the war, when the Commonwealth still was clinging to neutrality, they had argued that the way to preserve slavery in this state was to side with the Union in reliance upon the declaration by President Lincoln in his inaugural address that he had no intention to interfere with slavery in the states in which it existed, that he had neither the inclination nor the power to do so. They had been shocked by the Emancipation Proclamation, but since it applied only to the seceding states, in which at that time it could not be enforced, and not to Kentucky, they had become more or less reconciled to that. But now Kentucky slaves were being freed by a Federal judge, and accordingly their anxiety increased about the security of their holdings.

Thomas E. Bramlette, who had just been elected governor of Kentucky but had not taken office, was the district attorney who successfully prosecuted Shacklett. He had been appointed to the post by President Lincoln during the previous year, prior to that having been the commander of the Third Kentucky (Union) Infantry regiment, which he had organized. (Shacklett would be pardoned in 1864.) During this same week of 1863, there was a reunion of a sort among Kentucky soldiers of the Confederacy at Columbus, Ohio. Brig. Gen. John H. Morgan and 29 officers who had been captured with him July 26, at the end of the Indiana-Ohio Raid, already were confined in the penitentiary at Columbus, being treated as criminals rather than as prisoners of war. They were joined by Col. Basil Duke and 37 others who had been captured at Buffington's Island and meantime had been held briefly in a regular war-prisoner camp which the Union Army maintained on Johnson's Island in Lake Erie.

Duke, in his "History of Morgan's Cavalry," tells about not recognizing his commanding officer, who was also his brother-in-law, when he first entered the Columbus prison. "While we were waiting in the hall before being placed in our cells," he says, "a convict, as I supposed, spoke to me in a low voice... I made some remark about the familiarity of our new friends on short acquaintance, when by the speaker's peculiar laugh I recognized Gen. Morgan, so shaven and shorn that his voice alone was recognizable."

THESE THINGS I KNOW

I know that this day will never come again; it should therefore be the best day of my life.

I know that true happiness is a thing within and that when I begin to search for it, I have it; when I get it and give it away again, it comes back double.

I know that if I live youth, I am young; if I live happiness, I am happy; if I attempt worthwhile things, I shall accomplish them.

I know that this world is not man's only abiding place, else why the human aspirations which spring from our hearts and remain for a time unsatisfied?

I know that the answer to all questions, to all uncertainties, is God.

A NEW START

I will start anew this morning with a higher, fairer creed; I will cease to stand complaining of my ruthless neighbor's greed; I will cease to sit repining while my duty's call is clear; I will waste no moment whining, and my heart shall know no fear; I will look sometimes about me for the things that merit praise; I will search for hidden beauties that elude the grumbler's gaze. I will try to find contentment in the paths that I must tread; I will cease to have resentment when another moves ahead. I will not be swayed by envy when my rival's strength is shown; I will not deny his merit, but I'll strive to prove my own; I will try to see the beauty spread before me, rain or shine; I will cease to preach YOUR duty, and be more concerned with MINE.

—Anon.

A PRAYER

Lord, as Thou hast clothed the trees in green, clothe me in humility and righteousness. As Thou has touched the flowers by Thy Divine hand, touch my life, that I may portray Thy beauty and send forth fragrance of love to the honor and glory of Thy name. Increase my faith that it will be as unmovable as the mountains. Help me to love Thee with all my heart, soul, mind and strength, both friend and foe, that my soul will overflow with joy and join the birds and all creation in praising Thy name. And let my service be as a rolling stream, that will never know any rest until it empties into the ocean of Thy love, I pray in Jesus' name. Amen

Beautiful Church Wedding Unites Susan Bushart, Richard Cardwell

By Agatha Gayle Voelpel

An outstandingly beautiful wedding was solemnized at five o'clock in the afternoon, the third day of August, at the First Methodist Church, when Miss Susan Callahan Bushart, daughter of Doctor and Mrs. Robert Ward Bushart, became the bride of Richard Lewis Cardwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Cardwell. The impressive double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. W. T. Barnes, minister of the church. The ceremony was witnessed by a large assembly of relatives and friends of the bridal couple and their parents.

The bride's brothers, Tom Callahan Bushart and Robert Ward Bushart, Jr. served as acolytes preceding the ceremony. They also served as ushers.

The altar decorations were most handsome. Centering the choir loft was a tall candelabra arranged in heart shape. Other candelabra were placed before the choir rail and along the communion rail. Emerald fern was entwined around the candelabra, which held tall wedding candles. Matching arrangements of mammoth white chrysanthemums were placed in the gold altar vases. The focal point of the altar arrangements was a spreading arrangement of white chrysanthemums which centered the choir rail. Single chrysanthemums, backed with emerald ferns, were placed on each pew and outlined the bridal aisle.

Preceding the ceremony a program of organ music was presented by Mr. John G. Winter. Immediately preceding the processional Mrs. Rodney Miller, soprano, sang "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee", "Song of Ruth," Gounod; "How Do I Love Thee," Lippe, and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding march from Wagner was used as the processional and the Mendelssohn Wedding March as the recessional. The postlude was "Wedding March II," Bloch. During the ceremony the organist played, "Evening Star" by Wagner.

The lovely young bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an original wedding gown designed by Bianchi in light ivory peau de soie and Alencon lace. The voluminous skirt, poised over petticoats, had a high rising Empire bustline and controlled bell hipline fullness. A miniature pillbox headpiece covered with matching lace and heavily embroidered with pearls, secured a quadruple tiered veil of imported English illusion, which cascaded to the waistline. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white orchids and stephanotis backed with bridal illusion and bridal satin ribbons.

Miss Lynn Bushart was her sister's maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Ann Bennett, Miss Nancy Bushart, Miss Ann Adams, Miss Lucy Ruth Salmon and Miss Mary Ellen Salmon. They wore identical floor-length Bianchi dresses in pink-orchid peau de soie. They wore miniature matching pillbox hats, with full circle veils of matching tulle, and carried spray arrangements of fuchsia Cattleya orchids.

Little Miss Susan Lynn Miller was an adorable flower girl, wearing a floor length ivory silk dress designed along Empire lines. Her headpiece was a circlet of matching silk and she carried a white lace basket, from which she scattered rose petals. Little Miss Miller is a cousin of the bride, and her namesake. Young Matt Hoffman was the ring bearer.

The groom's father, Ernest B. Cardwell, served his son as best man. Ushers besides the bride's brothers were: David Daniels, Eddie Moore, Johnnie Jones and Bobby Powell.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Bushart chose a handsome tea length frock of Aqua Venice lace over matching satin. Scalloped lace formed a scooped neckline and brief sleeves. She wore a small feather pillbox, matching her dress, and her corsage was a large pure white orchid.

Mrs. Cardwell, mother of the groom, wore an afternoon frock of muted pink and her small hat was of matching flowers encrusted with crystals and brilliants. Her corsage was a deep fuchsia orchid.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents were hosts at an elaborate reception at the Fulton Country Club. The mantle was banked with a fan-shaped arrangement of large white chrysanthemums and emerald ferns, with tall white candles burning in branched brass candelabra. An arrangement of pink-orchid gladioli in a silver urn was placed before the picture window.

The reception table was draped with a floor length taffeta cloth, covered with net. Swags of pink-orchid tulle encircled the edges of the table and at each corner were chrysanthemums on bows of pink-orchid satin. Satin streamers were floor length. The tiered wedding cake was surrounded with gardenias, and white candles burned in branched silver candelabra. Assisting at the reception were Miss Mary Swann Bushart, Mrs. G. F. Bushart, Mrs. H. L. Bushart, Mrs. Maxwell McDade, Mrs. Harold Hoffman, Miss Katherine Thomas, Miss Katherine Craig, Miss Ruth Louise Butts, Miss Joan Carter, Miss Meredith Miller and Miss Gail Bushart.

Early in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Cardwell left for an extended wedding trip. For traveling, the bride chose a three-piece summer knit suit. The jacket and skirt were in slate blue, the overblouse was powder blue with a slate stripe at the bottom of the blouse.

Mr. Richard Lewis Cardwell

She wore a blue feather pillbox hat and her accessories were of black lizard. She wore the white orchids from her bridal bouquet.

Among the many out of town guests at the wedding and reception were: Miss Kitty Craig, Lexington, Kentucky, Miss Kathy Thomas of Baytown, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Jones, Nashville, Tennessee, Harvey L. Elder of Murray, Kentucky, Mrs. Danny Baird, Mac Baird of Annapolis, Maryland, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Lester, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sanger, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hornsby, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison, and Mrs. C. M. Hornsby of Hickman Kentucky, also Mr. and Mrs. George Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brady, Junior, of Clifton, Kentucky, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Thompson, Miss Katherine M. Weatherpoon, Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Davis, Miss Mary Sandra Davis, and Miss Barbara Davis of Madisonville, Kentucky, Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Powell, Jr. of St. Louis Missouri.

Also Bill Stratton, of Frankfort, Kentucky, Bill Crain of Flemingsburg, Kentucky, Charles Clark of Louisville, Kentucky, Mrs. Morgan Adams, Miss Judy Adams, Don Lockhart of Mayfield, Kentucky, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Byrn of Murray Kentucky, Scott McClellan of Kansas City, Missouri, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Area Shaken By Earth Tremor Last Week; No Damage Is Reported

A slight tremor rippled through Far Western Kentucky and Southern Illinois Friday night, but police said damage was slight and no injuries were reported.

The St. Louis University department of geophysics said a Richter magnitude reading of four, a moderate tremor, was recorded. A spokesman said about four tremors of the size are felt in the area of Friday's quake during a normal year. He said the center of the tremor was about 140 miles southeast of St. Louis.

University officials said the tremor actually only lasted a few seconds, although the seismograph showed a duration of 5 minutes.

Authorities in cities and counties along the Ohio River said a rumble followed by a brief shaking about 7:38 p. m. (C. D. T.) sent countless persons scurrying into streets and yards, but more out of curiosity than fright.

The tremor was reportedly concentrated in an area between Metropolis, Ill., and Mayfield, Ky.

A television station in Paducah, Ky., said it received numerous telephone calls, but no damage reports. Windows were rattled.

Persons within 15 miles of Metropolis, and in Cairo 30 miles to the west, also felt the tremor.

Metropolis police said the tremor was described by many as a rumble similar to thunder approaching from the south followed by a momentary shaking.

Similar tremors have affected the lower Ohio and central Mississippi valleys in the past year and a half.

Portions of six states were shaken March 3 by a tremor centering around Sikeston, Mo., about 30 miles west of Cairo.

A tremor February 2, 1962, shook sections of four states centering again in Southeastern Missouri.

The area's worst quakes, also centering in Southeast Missouri, rattled the Mississippi Valley between December 16, 1811, and spring of 1812.

The series is described as one of the world's worst on record, but caused limited damage and few injury reports because of the region's sparse population at the time.

A geologist said after this year's March tremor that minor tremors are valuable. They relieve tensions deep in the earth reducing chances that conditions would build up a serious earthquake, he said.

Couple Injured In Wreck North Of City Limits

A Perry, Ga., civil service employee and his wife were injured in a head-on collision on Highway 51 overhead bridge at the Y three miles north of Fulton about 7 a. m. Saturday.

Mrs. Mary Jane Halldorson, 43, driver of the car, and her husband, Arbec Halldorson, 46, were taken to Hillview Hospital in Fulton.

William Gayden, 24, of St. Louis, Mo., driver of the other car, received a knee injury but was dismissed after hospital treatment.

State Trooper Joe Hill of Clinton said that Gayden was traveling south on Highway 51 and apparently approached the bridge at an excessive rate of speed. He lost control of the car and veered into the path of the oncoming north-bound Halldorson car, Hill said.

Both cars were demolished in the head-on collision. The Halldorsons were the only occupants of their car. Gayden had four passengers in his car, who were treated for minor injuries and dismissed.

'They're Off...' At Ellis Park Daily Races

"They are off..." is the familiar cry now heard coming from the stands of the Ellis Park track, at the start of each race, as the thoroughbreds leave the starting gate to give the fans the thrill that only a horse race can.

All of this will continue through daily, excepts Sundays, until and including Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 2.

Thoroughbreds quartered at Ellis Park include top money winners from Miles Park, Louisville, Ky.; Cahokia Downs, Belleville, Ill.; River Downs, Cincinnati, Ohio; and Aksarban Park, Omaha, Nebraska.

Lester E. Yeager, president and general manager of Ellis Park, predicts another record-breaking season, both in attendance and play through the pari-mutuels.

It marks the 40th annual 29-day summer meet of the Dade Park Jockey Club, Inc.,

WESTERN STATE HOSPITAL
Mrs. Paul Westpheling
Fulton, Kentucky

Dear Mrs. Westpheling:

The forty (40) people (patients and staff) who attended "Stars In My Crown" on July 17th came back amazed and thrilled with the performance they saw. I truly wish that you and the people who made it possible for the trip could have been here to have heard and seen the results of what you gave. I am sure that you would have been most pleased.

I cannot thank you enough for your consideration of these patients coming to the play. Your understanding in this matter was wonderful. Just saying "thank you" is not enough for the people who see the problem and the need to get these patients back into the community but please feel free to call upon us if we can ever be of service to you.

Good luck on the rest of your season.

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) Betty K. Swan

James Alfred Wall, Miss Worley Exchange Vows At Baptist Church

Mr. and Mrs. Wall

On July 7th Miss Gladys Jean Worley, daughter of Mrs. Veneita Worley, became the bride of James Alfred Wall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wall of Martin, Tenn., in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church in Fulton. The impressive double ring ceremony was solemnized at four o'clock in the afternoon, with the Rev. Kenneth Duncan officiating.

The altar was decorated with green and white. Centering the pulpit was a spreading arrangement of white gladioli and emerald fern. Branched wrought iron candelabra were used on each side, with tall white wedding tapers for illumination.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Frank LeMaster, organist, and Norman White, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, James Worley, wore a handsome formal wedding gown of crystal white pure silk organza over taffeta. Her tiered veil of bridal illusion fell from a tiny crown of pearls and she carried a bouquet of carnations centered with a white orchid, illusion puffs and satin ribbons.

Miss LaDon Fields, maid of honor, wore a street length dress of pale blue silk organza with a short veil, falling from a wreath of seed pearls. She carried a colonial style bouquet of white carnations with puffs of tulle and white ribbons. Miss Sheila Scott was flower girl, wearing pale blue silk organza and a short veil falling from a wreath of seed pearls. Jimmy McMinn served the groom as best man and ushers were Jimmy Barber and Ronnie Wall.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table was draped with a lace edged linen cloth, and was centered with an arrangement of white gladioli, flanked with blue tapers in crystal holders. The tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Howard Worley, Mrs. L. C. East-erling, Misses Alice Boyd and Donna Wall.

Early in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Wall left for a short wedding trip.
